PUBLIC SCHOOLS RITES TONIGHT

Exercises Thursday Night At High School And On Friday At Diamond Springs School

Public Schools Week in El Dorado County is marked by three principal programs this year instead of two, as has been the custom in years before.

Events remaining in the week include the county-wide Public Schools Week observance at the high school tonight, and the exercises at Diamond Springs school on Friday night in which the pupils and patrons of the schools in the western part of the county will participate.

The third event, and the first in chronological order, was the "open house" and program on Wednesday evening at Placerville Grammar school.

At the high school Thursday night, the building will be open at 7 o'clock at which time parents of pupils and others who may be interested will be given opportunity to visit the various classrooms and inspect the work of pupils which will be on display.

At 8:15 o'clock, in the school auditorium, a short program will be held with the principal talk by Sam Holsinger.

"SECURITY" is a delusion; the only security is in knowledge and ambition, declared Henry Ford today following his conference at the White House on Wednesday with President Roosevelt.

PEOPLE HALF ASLEEP, SAYS HENRY FORD

Have Leader Who Is "Putting Something Over On Them," Says Motor Magnate

NEW YORK, (AP)—Henry Ford, without specifying to whom he referred, said today that the people have a leader "who is putting something over on them."

He was asked whether he referred to a labor leader or to some one else. Ford declined to answer.

Ford made the statement in an interview when he was asked about general conditions.

"There's a lot of people who are half asleep," he said. "They are looking for a leader and they have one who is putting something over on them—and they deserve it. People ought to be their own leaders."

Following his luncheon with President Roosevelt yesterday, Ford previously had expressed belief that there is too much government interference with business and too much financial interference with government.

"Did you come away from the conference with President Roosevelt assured that conditions will be better?" Ford was asked.

"Conditions are going to be different," he said.

"Do you mean better?" Ford replied. "Certainly. Conditions will always change. People have got to wake up and go to work. We are getting near civilization."

Ford characterized "security" as a "delusion."

"The only security," he said "is in knowledge and ambition."

Fields And Siderius Ordered To San Quentin For Part In Highgrading At Black Oak

A notice of appeal was filed by their attorney in Superior Court Thursday morning immediately after Judge George H. Thompson sentenced Mitchell D. Siderius and Robert Fields to San Quentin prison following their conviction on a charge of grand theft in connection with highgrading at the Black Oak mine.

The court earlier had denied a motion for a new trial and took under advisement the application that the defendants be admitted to bail.

Under sentence as passed, the men will serve indeterminate terms of from one to ten years.

Indicted by the grand jury on several counts of grand theft, the men were found guilty by a jury which reported last Saturday morning after eighteen hours of deliberation, on one count. It accused them of stealing gold ore of a value of about $2,200 from the mine on or about January 24, last. Not guilty verdicts were brought in on four counts.

Levine Kidnap Trail Found

Search Launched Anew As Cafe Man At Santa Fe Reports He Saw Boy Tuesday Night

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP)—Federal agents announced today that they had begun a systematic search of the southwest for a boy seen here Tuesday night who resembled Peter Levine, kidnapped son of a New Rochelle, N. Y. lawyer.

R. H. Colvin, special agent in charge of the El Paso office of the department of justice, revealed that reports had been current for two weeks that the boy had been seen in southwestern states. He said he had addressed a circular letter to local authorities asking them to maintain a close watch for clues that might identify the Levine boy and his abductors.

A boy, in the company of two men, bought sandwiches Tuesday night at the small roadside restaurant operated by John Karavanos in Santa Fe. Karavanos and a waitress, Nellie Thiehoff, each identified pictures of the Levine boy as identical with the boy for whom they fixed sandwiches.

The boy, they said, was hurried by his companions. As soon as the order was filled, the men rushed him out of the restaurant. Karavanos did not become suspicious until he went to the police station yesterday on another matter and happened to see pictures of the Levine boy on the bulletin board.

He had been cited to appear by officers on Wednesday evening after his car had crashed into a power line pole on Upper Main Street. A doctor, upon examination, was unable to pronounce him drunk.

WORLD WAR DANGER SEEN BY PITTMAN

Senate Foreign Relations Chairman Says Further Conferences "Futile"

By ALLEN C. DIBBLE

United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON. (Copyright 1938 by United Press)—Chairman Key Pittman, D. Nev., of the senate's foreign relations committee and foreign policy spokesman for the administration in congress told the United Press today that there is "imminent danger" of a world war which eventually may involve the United States.

"Although we might keep out of a world war," he said, "the victors, after such a war, might find it profitable to force us into war for the purpose of having us pay the bill for their conquest."

He expressed grave concern over European events, but added that the United States can do nothing to help settle the confused international situation.

"Conferences would be absolutely futile," he said.

Pittman is not worried about this country's entrance into a foreign war. He believes that only an invasion of the United States or its territories could precipitate a declaration of war by this government. He continued that the neutrality act was "sufficient" to preclude the United States' entrance into a foreign struggle.

$10,000 Damages Asked In Car-Auto Crash

Suit for $10,000 damages against M. S. Dixon was on file Thursday morning in Superior Court. The papers were filed in behalf of Pete Baralos, of Cammino, by Attorney Wallace Sheppard, and state that Baralos was injured on or about March 1, last, when the defendant allegedly operated his automobile carelessly and negligently and in such a manner as to cause it to collide with a section car on the Placerville, Cammino and Lake Tahoe railroad.

Mr. Baralos, a married man, was injured on the handcar and charges he received injuries which have incapacitated him for work since that time and caused him to expend $1,000 for medical supplies and medical and dental services. The complaint asks general damages and a determination by the court of the amount allowable for loss of wages and for the medical and dental services.

Waldeck Expedition Returns To Civilization Reporting Site Of Crash Located

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana. (AP)—The Waldeck expedition has established definitely that Paul Redfern, American aviator missing for more than 10 years, perished in the Venezuelan jungles, members of the expedition said today.

The Waldeck expedition was composed of Theodore Waldeck, New York explorer; his wife; William stor Chandler of New York, and Dr. Frederick J. Fox, of Boston.

The Waldecks said today they had located the place where Redfern's plane crashed on the border of Venezuela and British Guiana while on a flight from Brunswick, Ga., to Buenos Aires.

The survivors of the Waldeck expedition reached Georgetown after several months in the jungle, during which they suffered incredible hardships while marooned by flood waters on inaccessible, desolate Devil's Hole Island, far up the Cuyuni River.

Dr. Fox died on the island.

BRUSSELS, (AP)—The fate of Belgium's civilian population in the air warfare of another European conflict would be appalling, according to Albert Devezze, former Belgian minister for national defense.

Probably only 10 minutes would intervene between the first air raid signal and the arrival of hostile planes. In each city throughout the country volunteers are being trained intensively to carry out the evacuation of civilians and provide them with gas masks. At the same time local Red Cross squads would be called out to take over emergency hospitals.

Plans also have been made to evacuate whole populations of cities if necessary. The evacuation would be superintended by members of the air protective league. Trenches would be dug along main roads in which refugees will be able to find shelter if suddenly attacked by enemy planes. Accommodation in castles and houses in the country will be reserved for old and sick refugees, while civilians generally will be housed temporarily in barns, schools or empty factories.

Most refugees will have to leave the cities on foot, although plans have been prepared to take some in automobiles and buses.

The Belgian people already are being accustomed to air raid alarms through practice raids carried out on Sundays. Steadily increasing numbers of volunteers are being trained for air raid precautions.

NEW YORK (AP)—Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's latest decree has great possibilities for us reporters.

Hitler, at the suggestion of Hermann Goering, perhaps, has ordered that German newspapermen must wear special uniforms when they accompany him to Rome on his visit to Mussolini next month—snappy blue-black outfits and gloves.

I hope this idea will catch on with American newspaper publishers and that in the near future reporters over here will have uniforms for every occasion. I have felt for years that my wardrobe was a mess and thoroughly unsuitable to meet the sartorial demands of my work. More than once I have had to attend a wrestling match with a clean shirt on, and I want to tell you it makes one feel downright uncomfortable to sit at such a gathering in spotless linen.

Since reading Hitler's decree I have been busy making out a sample wardrobe for a man in my business. The list of outfits I have made up was done with an eye to practicality and pocketbook as well as fashion, and while it isn't complete as it might be, I believe it will suffice.

For interviewing Bill Terry: A dark blue, double-breasted diving bell with non-scorchable listening and talking tubes. A small fireman's hatchet makes an attractive (and handy) boutonniere for this suit. This suit would also serve admirably for meetings of the New York boxing commission, especially when the listening tube has been disconnected.

AUBURN. — Two drills in one week. That is an unusual situation but in order to accommodate the Federal inspector we had to arrange to have our inspection on Thursday night instead of Tuesday. Tuesday night the boys spent in last minute preparation for the inspection. Any one that has gone through an Army inspection will know what a last minute check up means. There are always a lot of little things that need catching up and believe me it keeps you on your toes.

Thursday night, Federal Inspection, with the boys all here early in order to get those few last minute touches on their equipment and worrying around out on the drill floor because they were not allowed in the locker room until the inspecting officer, Colonel Monroe, had completed his inspection. The Colonel was very considerate though and arrived here earlier than was expected in order not to interfere with the men's preparations. He reported that the supply room, locker room and the orderly room were in excellent shape. Of course we weren't sorry to hear that. The inspection was a combination of two inspections. Colonel Monroe inspected for the federal government and Major Armstrong inspected for the division commander.

Everything went off according to schedule and both the inspecting officers reported that there were only a few minor deficiencies in the organization and that they considered the Auburn outfit above the average among the rifle companies in the state. They also complimented the outfit on the type of personnel. They especially noted the fire and enthusiasm the men had during the drill.

Mrs. Amy Drysdale was in town on Thursday from Georgetown.

New Goggle Is Perfected

Shingle Mining Men Devise Protective Visor On Which Patent Has Been Obtained

William McClung, mining engineer, and Paul Ransom, master mechanic, for the Mountain Copper Company, Ltd., at their Big Canyon property near Shingle Springs, have developed a new type of goggle or protective visor which bids fair to find wide use in industry.

The two have obtained full patent rights on the visor and enumerate its advantages as follows:

"This new type goggle, called a protective visor, has been developed to be used in combination with the ordinary industrial hat, especially those having hard crowns and rims, and known to the public as 'hard hats.' The visor itself is made of a non-breakable, flexible 'glass,' which is transparent and easily cleaned.

"Heretofore, industrial workers, in certain occupations such as mining, where flying particles endanger the eye, have used the common type of goggle which engages the face and is uncomfortable to the wearer. In fact, many workers rather than wear the goggles abandon them and risk injury.

"This goggle is so constructed that it doesn't engage the face of the wearer, provides full vision, and may easily be adjusted from a position before the person's eyes to a retracted position into the hat and clear of the line of vision."
